Self-Guided Tour

Welcome to the University of Southern California. This 60- to 90-minute walking tour will introduce you to the beautiful University Park Campus and its significant points of interest. Within this guide you will find a map to help you stay on route, and information about nearby entertainment and cultural venues.

We thank you for visiting our campus and hope you enjoy your stay.

TOUR THE UNIVERSITY PARK CAMPUS

The University Park Campus spans 226 acres just three miles south of Downtown Los Angeles, adjacent to the museums and recreational facilities of historic Exposition Park. Rich with architectural history, the campus fosters a vibrant cultural community as well as a stimulating academic environment.

Connecting venerable Doheny Memorial Library with ultra-modern Leavey Library is the beautifully landscaped park of McCarthy Quad. The gardens and green space of John Argue Plaza border the Widney Alumni House — the university's oldest structure and a California Historic Landmark — while the campus' tree-lined pedestrian walkways, fountains, courtyards and other public spaces encourage quiet reflection as well as social interaction.

Public art adorns buildings, courtyards and open spaces across the campus. The works of renowned local and national artists are featured prominently on the lawn between Exposition Boulevard and Watt Hall, and in the rolling Anna Bing Sculpture Garden. One of only four accredited art museums in Los Angeles, the USC Fisher Museum of Art is devoted exclusively to fine art. Exhibitions range from antiquities, to works by Old Masters, to contemporary pieces by local, national and international artists.

USC School of Cinematic Arts

Founded in collaboration with the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences (AMPAS) in 1929, the USC School of Cinematic Arts has fueled and mirrored the growth of entertainment as an industry and an art form. The School offers comprehensive programs in film and television production, writing, critical studies, media arts and practice, animation and digital arts, and interactive media and games — all backed by a broad liberal arts education and taught by leading practitioners in each field. cinema.usc.edu

Annenberg School for Communication and Journalism

The USC Annenberg School for Communication and Journalism is a national leader in education and scholarship in the fields of communication, journalism, public diplomacy and public relations. Our degree programs span a broad scope of academic inquiry, while our comprehensive curriculum emphasizes the core skills of leadership, innovation, service and entrepreneurship — all drawn from a networked university in a global urban environment. annenberg.usc.edu

Kaufman School of Dance (Opening 2015)

Thanks to a generous gift from visionary Los Angeles philanthropist Gloya Kaufman, the Kaufman School of Dance will become the sixth arts school at USC. Programs will offer training in both classical and contemporary dance, and allow students to benefit from USC's ties to the Los Angeles arts and entertainment communities. kaufman.usc.edu

USC School of Dramatic Arts

Ranked as one of the top drama programs in the world, the School of Dramatic Arts encourages students to discover their fullest creative expression through conservatory-style artistic training within the context of a major research university. dramaticarts.usc.edu

Viterbi School of Engineering

Through more than 30 unique majors and areas of emphasis, students in the Viterbi School work in a collaborative environment focused on innovation and improving the world around them. Viterbi engineers work with faculty in labs to create new technologies while learning within a diverse and interdisciplinary education we call "engineering +." viterbi.usc.edu

Roski School of Art and Design

The Roski School of Art and Design offers areas of study across all media and encourages students to explore and move freely among them. Creative internship opportunities further facilitate crucial professional connections that can open doors and last a lifetime. roski.usc.edu

Davis School of Gerontology

With nearly one-third of the U.S. population reaching retirement age, there has never been a better time to study this rapidly growing field. Because gerontology is an interdisciplinary field, our programs integrate the study of related fields such as biology, psychology, sociology, medicine and business, and prepare students to pursue advanced degrees. www.usc.edu/gero

Keck School of Medicine

There is perhaps no better place than USC for students to prepare for advanced studies or careers in the health professions. The Bachelor of Science in Global Health and the Bachelor of Science in Health Promotion & Disease Prevention Studies foster multidisciplinary approaches to the study of health, allow students to tailor their coursework to their professional goals, and graduate as health professionals ready to meet the challenges of the 21st century. keck.usc.edu

Independent Health Professions Division of Occupational Science and Occupational Therapy

Ranked #1 by U.S. News and World Report, the Division prepares students for clinical practice and offers progressive degree tracks that allow students to work toward a master's degree without applying to graduate school. Graduates contribute to the quality of life for people around the world. www.usc.edu/ot

Thornton School of Music

The oldest continually operating cultural institution in Los Angeles, USC Thornton consistently ranks among the nation's top music schools and conservatories, bringing together a stellar faculty and offering an impressive range of performance opportunities — all within the vibrant hub of the music industry. www.usc.edu/music

Price School of Public Policy

Fostering leadership, collaboration and innovative thinking, the USC Price School of Public Policy works to improve the quality of life for people and their communities around the world. Students enjoy the resources of a large research university, combine classroom knowledge with practical real-world experience, and gain a multidisciplinary perspective that facilitates effective problem-solving. www.usc.edu/price

Ronald Tutor Campus Center

The 150,000-square-foot Ronald Tutor Campus Center houses our Admission Center, Alumni Center, student offices and workspace, multipurpose areas for meetings and gatherings, a wide variety of dining options — including a fine-dining restaurant — and performance venues.

2

Student Union Building

The Student Union remains one of the main hubs for extracurricular campus life. Housed inside are offices for cultural centers such as the Center for Black Cultural and Student Affairs, and Asian Pacific American Student Services. Here you will also find the USC Ticket Office, a pharmacy, the Career Center, Disability Services and Programs, and the Daily Trojan, USC's student-run, daily newspaper.

Leventhal School of Accounting Accounting

As the long-standing and nationally recognized sister school to the Marshall School of Business, the Leventhal School of Accounting prepares students to achieve the highest levels of success in the accounting profession. All accounting majors follow the business administration track for their first two years, then devote their last two years to accounting.

4

Bridge Hall Business

Home (along with the adjacent Hoffman Hall) to the Marshall School of Business, Bridge Hall was dedicated in 1930 as part of USC's semi-centennial celebration. Marshall offers a four-year business program that allows students to pursue interdisciplinary work and multiple concentrations. Its prestigious faculty, location in Los Angeles and access to an active alumni network make this program one of the leading business schools in the nation.

5

Mudd Hall The Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences

Dedicated in 1930, the Mudd Hall of Philosophy has become a distinct and recognizable landmark on the University Park Campus. It currently houses the Hoose Library, one of the best collections of philosophy texts in the world, along with classrooms and faculty offices.

6

Harris Hall Art and Design

Harris Hall serves as headquarters for our Roski School of Art and Design. The school offers a flexible Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) and an intensive Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA). In addition to challenging themselves in a rigorous academic program, students at Roski have interned at a wide variety of companies and institutions including MTV, ABC, Sony Pictures and the J. Paul Getty Museum.

7

Watt Hall Architecture

Located in Watt Hall and the oldest of its kind in Southern California, the USC School of Architecture offers four- and five-year programs and provides study-abroad opportunities in Europe and Asia. Its distinguished alumni include Pritzker Prize-winners Thom Mayne and Frank Gehry. In 2011, USC president C. L. Max Nikias named Gehry the Judge Widney Professor of Architecture.

8

Ronald Tutor Hall Engineering

Here on the southwest side of campus, you will find Ronald Tutor Hall and many other buildings associated with the Viterbi School of Engineering. In addition to state-of-the-art classrooms and research facilities, Tutor Hall fosters community with the Baum Family Student Center, a spacious lounge on the second floor, and a popular café.

9

Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center Gerontology

This building houses the Davis School of Gerontology, the oldest and largest school of gerontology in the world. A pioneer in the field, the Davis School offered the world's first PhD program in Gerontology, the first joint master's degree with Gerontology and Business Administration and the first undergraduate Health Sciences track in Gerontology.

10

Seeley G. Mudd Building Health Professions

SGM is home to several of our Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences and Health Promotion and Disease Prevention classes. HPDP, as it is commonly referred to, is a unique option for students who want to focus on the psychological and biological aspects of health and well being.

11

Grace Ford Salvatori Hall The Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences

Another hub for USC's largest academic unit, the Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences, GFS provides space for discussion sections, during which students delve more deeply into critical concepts and materials. Discussion sections bring a smaller, tighter-knit feel to USC's larger, entry-level classes.

12

Pertusati University Bookstore

This bookstore has everything you need to be a well-equipped USC student, parent, alum or fan. The basement offers a men and women's clothing store, makeup counter and computer store. The first floor is a general bookstore, complete with novels, magazines and more. The second floor features fantastic Trojan apparel and the third floor offers course textbooks and other classroom supplies.

Wallis Annenberg Hall Communication

The newest addition to the Annenberg School for Communication and Journalism, the 88,000-square-foot Wallis Annenberg Hall combines tradition and technological innovation. Students and staff in the Public Relations, Journalism and Communication programs can take advantage of its converged media center, classrooms for multimedia content creation, café and numerous meeting areas. Its exterior is a blend of Romanesque and neo-Gothic elements.

Katherine B. Loker Track Stadium/Cromwell Field

Home to the men's and women's track and field teams, this stadium also provides a playing field for a wide array of club and intramural sports. The five obelisks in the northeast corner of the stadium signify USC's strong Olympic tradition.

Heritage Hall

Trojan Athletics makes its home in Heritage Hall, where the coaches' and athletic administration offices can be found. Heritage Hall also boasts a beautiful display of USC's six Heisman Trophies, numerous national championship awards and other prestigious athletic accolades.

► Did You Know: USC sponsors a philanthropic program called "Swim With Mike," an annual swim-a-thon held to raise money for the Physically Challenged Athletes Scholarship Fund. It was established in 1981 on behalf of Mike Nyeholt, a three-time All-American swimmer who was paralyzed from the chest down following a motorcycle accident.

School of Cinematic Arts Complex Cinematic Arts

USC alumnus George Lucas raised and donated $175 million toward construction of these state-of-the-art facilities, which include classrooms, sound stages, post-production facilities, editing labs, screening rooms and administrative space for the School of Cinematic Arts.

► Did You Know: Cinema students have enough resources available to them to produce a feature-length film without ever leaving campus.

Bing Theatre Dramatic Arts

This facility seats 550 and features a traditional proscenium-style stage that can accommodate the needs of the school's large-scale productions. Thanks to our unique location in Los Angeles, students in the School of Dramatic Arts have the opportunity to learn from visiting artists working in the industry and are encouraged to get involved in productions throughout the year.

Ramo Hall and Booth Hall Music

These constitute the main buildings for the Thornton School of Music, with classrooms and sound-proof practice rooms. One of the oldest and most distinguished music schools in the country, the School's conservatory-style curriculum attracts internationally renowned faculty artists, produces more than 500 concerts every year and remains the only university music school to broadcast a radio program in a major media market.

Eileen L. Norris Cinema Theater Cinematic Arts

Part of the USC School of Cinematic Arts, this building serves as a classroom as well as a general movie theatre for on-campus screenings. To enhance the movie-going experience, USC faculty member and Academy Award-winner Tomlinson Holman created the world-renowned THX reproduction standard now used in this theatre and in theatres around the world.

Annenberg School for Communication & Journalism Communication

Named for former US Ambassador and founder of Seventeen Magazine and TV Guide, Walter Annenberg, the School remains a leader in the fields of communication, journalism and public relations. Study abroad opportunities, internships, research, and digital media complement the academic learning environment. Students also have the opportunity to receive hands-on experience by participating in Annenberg TV News, Annenberg News Radio and the Daily Trojan student newspaper.

Taper Hall of Humanities The Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences

THH serves as home to USC Dornsife's departments of Comparative Literature, English, and Foreign Language. Numerous General Education courses are taught throughout its undergraduate lecture halls. In addition, two academic resource facilities are located on the top floors of THH: the Writing Center and the Language Center.

► Trojan Facts: The average class size at USC is 26 students. The student-to-faculty ratio is 9:1. All General Education classes are taught by full-time tenured or tenure-track faculty.

Trousdale Parkway

On a typical day at USC, Trousdale Parkway is bustling with students and professors. As the main thoroughfare on campus, Trousdale has become a center of student activity and the location of key events such as the Undergraduate Research Symposium, the Involvement Fair, the Career Fair and the Internship Fair, just to name a few.

23

Von KleinSmid Center The Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences

This large brick building is home to four of the departments in the Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences: International Relations, the Unruh Institute of Politics, East Asian Studies, and Art History. The globe atop the building's tower and the international flags surrounding the building represent USC's strong interest in global affairs and commitment to humanitarianism.

► International Trojans: USC has the largest international student population of any university in the country. The flags lining the walkways represent the geographic diversity of our student body.

Leavey Memorial Library

The newest of USC's 23 libraries, Leavey offers computers, printing stations and sound-proof rooms to facilitate studying and research. It also stays open 24 hours a day, seven days a week to accommodate every student's busy schedule.

► Did You Know: The USC library system houses over four million volumes of books.

McCarthy Quad

McCarthy Quad serves as the hub of student life, especially for first-year students. Surrounding the Quad are a few of our nine on-campus residence halls. Marks Hall and Pardee Tower are two examples of typical dormitory-style residence halls, complete with cable TV, Internet service, and a microwave and mini-refrigerator unit in each room. In addition to dormitory-style halls, USC also offers suite-style and apartment-style complexes on the south side of campus.

26

Widney Alumni House

Upon USC's founding in 1880, the Alumni House stood as the university's first and only building, accommodating 53 students and 10 faculty members. It now serves the Alumni Association, which comprises over 300,000 Trojans worldwide.

► Trojan Fact: This house has been moved three times since 1880. It was originally located in what is now E.F. Hutton Park, just east of the Annenberg School for Communication and Journalism Building (20).

27

Ralph and Goldy Lewis Hall Public Policy

This beautifully constructed hall serves as the main headquarters for the Price School of Public Policy, which combines practical hands-on work with a solid theoretical foundation.

► Did You Know: The Price School of Public Policy requires mandatory internships with city commissioners, comptrollers and policy-makers to enrich the learning experience of its roughly 300 students.

28

Doheny Memorial Library

The oldest research library on the USC campus, Doheny comprises nine separate floors that house approximately 790,000 books. Doheny also boasts impressive architectural features such as marble pillars and a stained-glass study room known as the “Intellectual Commons.” Students, staff and visitors can find indoor and outdoor seating areas and a peaceful place for study or conversation in Doheny’s quaint coffee shop, LiteraTea.

29

Bovard Administration Building and Auditorium

The second oldest concert hall in Los Angeles, Bovard Auditorium seats nearly 1,250 people. Throughout the year, the auditorium hosts special events and performances for our Visions and Voices arts and humanities program. Past participants have included authors Isabel Allende and David Sedaris, the Diavolo Dance Theatre, and the world’s most acclaimed tap dancer, Savion Glover. Additionally, John Williams conducted a performance of several film scores in this auditorium. Bovard also houses the offices of the university president, provost and other members of the senior administration.

30

Tommy Trojan

A true symbol of USC, this handsome statue was built in 1930 to commemorate USC’s 50th anniversary. On the side of Tommy’s pedestal are the five ideal attributes of a Trojan: faithful, scholarly, skillful, courageous and ambitious. These traits distinguish USC graduates both in Los Angeles and around the globe.

Schools and departments not listed on the tour route:

School of Social Work
 Rossier School of Education
 Herman Ostrow School of Dentistry
